

Introducing The Otway Kitchen

St Laurence Community Services is delighted to re-launch its Australian Disability Enterprise The Pickle Gallery as 'The Otway Kitchen'.

Kitchen Manager, Megan Nelson explained "the commercial kitchen produces an extensive range of artisan products and it needed a new name to better reflect our expanding product range. The use of the word 'Otway' allows the new business, which operates in Colac, to more strongly align with tourism opportunities in the Otway Region.

All products in The Otway Kitchen produce range are made by hand in small batches. We use only the freshest seasonal produce. Wherever possible we source ingredients locally and support fruit and vegetables grown using organic methods.

All the hard work is done by a dedicated and passionate team of Supported Employees who are learning new skills in our industrial kitchen and building confidence in a work environment."

St Laurence CEO, Toby oConnor is thrilled to see the buzz of excitement of The Otway Kitchen team members. "We are incredibly proud of the strong work ethic and enthusiasm displayed by our workforce in The Otway Kitchen. They are a vital part of our business and we value their input in product development."
